Project Benefits

Job Creation

In the year since the project completed, did the project create increased economic activity that supports long-term employment in your organization, or another organization connected to the project?

This might include new jobs, or it might help retain existing jobs that would be lost without the project. Both new and retained jobs can be counted in the table below.

Complete the following table:

(Enter whole numbers only without commas or decimals. Totals will calculate automatically.)

Job Type	Number of People	Average Hours per week	Total months of employment per year
Total:

Has the project created increased employment in the rest of the community or region?
Please describe.

Business Competitiveness

Projects that increase business competitiveness strengthen the overall ability of the local business community to compete in the marketplace by providing necessary tools and resources required to conduct business, such as, but not limited to, connectivity, expansion of markets and distribution networks, expanded ability of local producers, job training and workshops for business owners.

Has the project strengthened the overall ability of the local business community to compete in the marketplace? If yes, please describe how the project has impacted and strengthened the overall ability of the local business community to compete in the marketplace. Provide examples and statistics where available.

Community Development

Has the project realized community development benefits including social benefits?

Community Development benefits enhance community cohesion, recreational amenities and health and social services and create critical building blocks for community stability. Community Development projects may include, but are not limited to, ways to improve community services and amenities and their utilization by the community, encourage a shared community vision, develop community infrastructure, and any other activities that make the community a more attractive place to live and visit, which helps attract residents and investment.

If yes, please describe how the project has contributed to community development.
